

Dr. John D. Nuschke MD FACP Penn Treaty Network America

John D Nuschke MD FACP attended and graduated from a 6 year combined BA/MD program involving Lehigh University and Hahnemann University. Dr. Nuschke completed his Internal Medicine residency at Lehigh Valley Hospital Center in Allentown. He was selected and completed a fellowship in general Internal medicine and Chief Medical residency. Dr. Nuschke joined a 4-man internal medicine group where he is still employed full time. He has served on numerous hospital committees including: medical director of patient care floors, associate chief of general internal medicine and chairman of the quality assurance committee at the LVH PHO. Dr. Nuschke has served in various positions in the 50 physician group practice without walls (MATLV), including president, vice president, secretary, medical director, board member and is currently serving as physician education liaison. He has been involved with teaching residents and has received teaching awards. Dr. Nuschke has been honored by being named one of "America's Best Doctors" for the past 10 years. He has received an added certificate in Geriatric medicine and has been selected as a fellow of the American College of Physicians. Dr. Nuschke is an adjunct professor at Cedar Crest College and organizes and teaches a course for pre-medical students. He has been involved with consulting and educational events for several pharmaceutical companies.

In January 2006, Dr. Nuschke was recruited to perform the duties of consulting medical director at Penn Treaty Network America. He has been enjoying this new challenge. His duties include educational seminars for the staff, resource information for underwriting and claims as well as chart reviews and medical opinions. Dr. Nuschke has attended the past 2 LTCIF conferences in Las Vegas and Savannah and has found them to be helpful in his new part-time role for Penn Treaty.
